Dears Sirs,

Nickel Heap Leach Demonstration Trial – Proposed Change of Location

In light of the extremely positive results from column test work and the growing acceptance of heap leaching as a technically and economically accepted processing option for nickel laterites, GME Resources Limited (ASX: GME) advises that it has decided to proceed with a smaller scale demonstration trial for its 100%-owned NiWest Nickel Project in Western Australia, based at its Hepi site. The Company does not intend to proceed with the previously advised trial at Norilsk's Cawse Mine. The MOU with Norilsk will automatically expire on June 30 2008 by mutual agreement.

The Hepi Demonstration Trial (HDT) will consist of a single heap of approximately 4,000 tonnes of ore, with provision for additional heaps if required. Planning is already well advanced for the HDT, GME has received Department of Industry and Resources clearing permit and approval for the trial mine, and grade control drilling has been completed. The water requirements for the trial have been identified and are being secured. Detailed engineering and design are underway. Conducting the trial at Hepi allows the Company to retain much greater control over the process and outcomes.

GME's Board has given approval to commence a Feasibility Study encompassing an expanded development strategy and the Company is currently in negotiation with metallurgical engineers to provide process flow sheet selection and design.

The Company is in the process of finalising a comprehensive strategic review based on an expanded Nickel Heap Leach development for the NiWest Nickel Laterite Project. Results from this review which will optimise resources contained at the project are expected to be completed this month.

Yours sincerely
